Proprietary brands provide momentum in Q126

LightInTheBox's (LITB's) Q126 results confirm its evolution from a low-margin cross-border e-commerce platform to a higher-quality, brand-led consumer platform capable of generating sustainable profit. The key takeaways from the results are strong growth for its proprietary brands, a stable gross margin and improved operational gearing as LITB continues to benefit from operating efficiencies and headcount reduction. These indicate the turnaround is gaining traction, which should be supportive for a re-rating towards peer-based multiples.

Year end	Revenue ($m)	EBITDA (adj) ($m)	PBT ($m)	EPS ($)	P/E (x)	EV/Adj EBITDA (x)
12/24	255.3	(0.1)	(2.5)	(0.14)	N/A	N/A
12/25	224.3	9.9	8.2	0.45	5.7	3.0
12/26e	251.8	13.0	11.4	0.63	4.2	2.3
12/27e	281.0	18.0	16.4	0.90	2.9	1.6

Note: PBT and EPS are reported. EPS is per ADS (including treasury).

Q126 strong revenue growth and operational gearing

For the second consecutive quarter, LITB reported double-digit revenue growth, increasing c 11% y-o-y to US$52.0m. In absolute terms, all the revenue growth was from the proprietary apparel brands, which grew 81% to represent c 24% of total revenue in Q126 (vs c 15% in Q125). While the repositioning of the legacy website during Q125 provides a relatively easy comparative, with an overall revenue decline of c 34% for the group versus Q124, the legacy website's revenue was broadly stable in Q126 vs Q125. Services and other revenue, which is relatively immaterial at c 4% of group revenue, continued its decline, reducing c 14%. The overall gross margin of 65.0% was broadly stable versus Q125's 65.2%, with a slightly lower gross margin for Product sales and higher gross margin for Services and other. Further down the income statement, we see good operational leverage of fulfilment costs, which declined on a relative basis (ie relative to revenue for the second consecutive quarter), and G&A costs, which have declined on a relative basis for four consecutive quarters. These were partially offset by a further relative increase in selling and marketing, which, at 47.3% of sales versus 46.6% in Q125, remain the most important constituent of opex. These netted out to give a strong increase in adjusted EBITDA, which more than doubled to c US$1.5m, and operating income, which increased more than eightfold to US$1.1m. The positive net income helped move the negative net asset position to c US$2.8m (end FY25: US$4.0m).

Q126 results supportive of FY26 forecasts

The first quarter of the year is typically a seasonally small quarter from a financial perspective; however, Q126's results are supportive of our FY26 estimates. LITB generated c 21% of our FY26 revenue and c 11% of our adjusted EBITDA estimates in Q126, which are in line with or slightly better than Q125's contribution (revenue of c 21% and adjusted EBITDA of c 6%) to FY25's results.

Valuation: Peer multiples suggest strong upside

The update of the correlation analysis in our initiation suggests an appropriate EV/sales multiple for LITB is 0.34x FY26e sales, which is an ADS price of US$6.24.
