Q2 returns to growth in FY26 as activity improves

While the share price performance implies an investor focus on the muted market conditions, it is easy to miss the fact that Columbus' relationship with its customer base is becoming more solutions-based. This positions it well for the recovery that Q2 suggests might be beginning. The current valuation seems to be taking a wait-and-see stance, but continued evidence of increased customer activity combined with a strategic update in November could change that.

Financials: Modest growth returns in Q2

Q226 revenue rose 2% to DKK420m (H126: -1% to DKK838m). Q226 EBITDA was DKK17m giving DKK43m for the first half (Q225: DKK16m, H125: DKK 63m). Q226 EBITDA margin was unchanged year-on-year but below expectations. H126 EBITDA margin was 5.1% (H125: 7.4%). Operating cash flow was -DKK38m due to working capital outflows associated with new major customers (Q225: +DKK18m), giving H126 operating cash flow of -DKK41m (H125: +DKK35m). Management maintained guidance of organic revenue growth in the range of 0–5% and EBITDA margin in the range of 8–10%.

Strategy: All eyes on November

Management reported signs of gradually improving customer activity during Q2, although the focus on disciplined execution continued with average full-time equivalent workforce being trimmed to 1,422 from 1,492. This is the context in which the next strategy update will be released in November. We expect any new strategic messaging to include a continued focus on the existing emphasis of leveraging efficiently the group's business model, including growing recurring revenues through service centres.

Valuation: Wait and see

A group of ten Nordic peers currently trade on an average forward EV/EBITDA of 8.7x compared to 10.3x for Columbus (9.8x ex-leases) and an EV/sales of 1.25x versus Columbus on 0.9x. Given the continued uncertainty around any sustained return to growth, the market seems unwilling to take a strong stance on the current Columbus valuation. It is possible that continued evidence in the future of increased customer activity combined with a compelling strategic update in November could change that.
